The adjourned inquest upon the body of Perry, lying in the Queen's Road, near the Government Civil Hospital, on the 3rd inst., with his brains knocked out. was held at the Magistracy this afternoon by viewed the body at the mortuary on Saturday. Inspector Perry gave evidence to the effect that at about 11 a.m. on the 3rd inst. he was in the Queen's Road West charge of a body of armed Sikhs. He saw Dr Horder, running bareheaded from the West; he was covered with blood an witness sent Sergeant Saucis with him Hospital About that time witness attention was drawn to the deceased, who was lying near the entrance to the Hospital in a pool of blood, with a large wound in the head from which the brains were protruding. Witness sent him to Hospital, Witness had made enquiries at all the shors close to the spot where deceased was found, but no one knew how he came by his death. A great disturbance had occur red and several shots had been fired. W ness had, however, learnt that the deceased was supposed to be Yee Ayau, a street coolle of about 56 years of age.

Dr Marques stated that at 11.30 a.m. last Friday the deceased was sent to the Government Civil Hospital. He died at 12.10 the same day. He was attended by Dr Wharry. Witness made a post mortem examination, and found the fronts bone fractured in two places and the brains protruding. He found part of a bullet lodged at the back of the brain. He believed that deceased had died from the effects of the Serreant Jas. Robertson, the Barrack Serveant at the Central Station, was called to give evidence as to the bullet found. He was unable to say whether the piece of lead was part of a bullet such as were made up into the government cartridges. Un Achun wife of Chee Afuk, of 5 Wing

Hing Lane, recognised the clothing of decessed as that of a street coulie named Yee Avan, who lived in the same house as witness. She had last seen him on the and had not since returned. He went out about daylight first, with a bamboo, and afterwards came back but went out again. She had heard people in the street say that ce Ayau had been killed.

Yau Akun, a street coolie, had lived tha same house with Yes Avan. The clothes. he believed were his, His saw im last at 7 o'clock on the morning of the 3rd. when he went out

They stated that the had fired over the heads of the crowd Some had fired three shots, others six o seven; in all, twenty thote had been fired. The jury returned a verdict to the effect that deceased met with his death by injuries received from a bullet wound, but there was no evidence to show how he came by the would or under what oircumstances. The jury also desired to record an ex pression of their point on that the expense of chair hire to jurymen should be defraved by the Government

The Attorney General :- L have to ask the Chinaman who was found by Inspector leave to introduce a bill to supplement the respects, for the purpose of better preserving the peace and good order of the Colony. I may state to the Council at once that propose to move the suspension of the Standing Orders, with the new of enabling the Coroner, Mr Wise, and the jury, who jus to pass this bill at one sitting. The de termination to take the course now followed was not arrived at until yesterday afternoon. and owing to the extremely short space. time which has been available for the preparation of the bill, it has not been possible to have copies of it printed, so as to place it in the hands of members. The provisions which it is proposed to include in this ordinance are substantially to supplement existing ordinances in three points. There are ordinances relating to the keeping of ammunition. explosive and other dangerous goods; and there are also ordinances relating, to some limited extent, to the carriage of arms. There are, however, no ordinances in the Colony preventing the possession or sale of arms. There are also provisions under Ord. 8 of 1882, enabling the Governor in Council, by order, banish from the Colony persons naturally born, or naturalised, subjects for a space nut exceeding years, and to enable him to fix the time for the departure of such persons from the Colony. There is no section, however, providing for the arrest or custody of the person to be banished bending the carrying out of the order against him. In the new ordinance it is intended to make a provision to effect that. Then there are provisions in the ordinance relating to matters for which hitherto no law has provided Amenast other things there is a provision that no person shall publish a proclamation in th Chinese language without his first obtaining permission from the Registrar General, an there are also provisions to prevent defacing or tearing down of proclamation issued with the authority of the Govern As regards the first class of provi or carrying of arms, the scope of have or carry any arms within the Colon except as authorised by the Governmen There is then a provision enabling the Oo vernor in Council to grant licenses to proper sions, that is with reference to the having, Ordinance is this. No Chinese person shall persons under proper conditions, to carr or have arms. There is a provision which morning of the 3rd inst, when he went out; will enable the police to search-very large owers of search—any house, diace. vessel, in the Colony for arms which may be there in contravention of the Or dinance, and the officer seizing them may in such case declare them to be forfeited to the Crown. Now it is intended that this ordinance shall come into force inmediately, but this provision is made only under pressure of extreme circum stances. It would have been better as special constables, not actually armed but if it had been possible to allow some considerable time to elapse, in order cause the least inconvenience to those persons who are locally in possession farms for the purpose of trade or other wise. so that they should have been able to dispose of them in their own way and under their own conditions. THE CASTING VOTE: To the Editor of the 'CHINA MAIL.' Hongkong, Oct. 8th. prove that such a rule for the exercise the casting vote, as that for which I conis unworkable and unreasonable Order adduces several imaginary cases, These problems I will now attempt to solve promising that all italies in the quota-

1. Commenting upon Mr Smith's statethat every motion is a proposal to do something, and in support of the assertion that the alternative in a motion does not always lie between doing something and letting things remain as they are, but often between doing one thing and doing something else (a point which I treated in a previous letter). Order' supposes a number of persons to be u a position of extreme danger. ways of escape are presented and it is essential to the safety of the party that they teep together. They discuss the question as to which of the two ways shall be adopted. Upon a division then is an equal number of votes. What is to be done! According to Mr Smith the Chairman ought to give his vote against any thing being done, and the party ought to-remain in its position of extreme danger. According to Mr Smith they ought to do nothing of the kind. This example of the reductio ad absurlum needs revising. For, not even according to the Smith of 'Order's' imagination. does the ludicrous conclusion follow from the premises. 'Order' is contending that the alternative in a motion is not always between doing something and nothing. is sometimes an alternative between doing one thing or doing another thing. already pointed out, that is not so, when a motion is properly put to a meeting. But let it be granted. In thecase supposd by Order, there are two ways that offer escape. The question discussed as to which of the two ways shall be adopted.' It is a motion in which there is an alternative between escaping one way or the other way. The votes are cqually divided. The Chairman gives his costing vote. With what result? This that, on whichever side be gives it, one of the alternative ways of escape is adopted. So that, accepting Order's statement of the case, to say that the result of any possible action of the Chairman under the conditions supposed could be that the party cugh to remain where it was, is a non sequitor. According to the real Mr Smith, the pro edure at such a meeting would. I think be as follows: The case begins with the assumption that, whether by a tacit and natural understanding or by formal resolution, the party in extreme peril is unanimously agreed that they shall not remain where they are, but go. The alternative before the meeting is, which of two ways of escape they shall adopt. The case supposes no other alternative to be possible. Very well. Mr A. proposes that they go east Mr B. proposes that they go west. Upon Mr A's motion there is an equal division. (it is of no consequence whether the Chairlost, the only possible alternative is, that they shall take the other route. Formally put to the meeting, there could not arise any need for the exercise of the casting vote, because this second motion would be carried unanimously - To vote against the only alternative left, would be to vote they they should remain where they are. Bu it had been previously agreed that they should not remain, but go.

2. Referring to Mr Smith's statement that the speaker of the House of Commons gives his casting vote against a motion so as Amongst the pedestrians going there to prevent the doing of something which it is proposed to do. 'Order' thinks there are conceivable cases where he might have to tonishing to see some healthy and links give the vote for a motion to secure that end For instance. he says, 'it might be known that the Government had decided to do some particular thing. A motion deprecating the course of action decided upon might be brought forward in this form-That in the opinion of this House it is undesirable. &c.
